RECITAL GIVEN BY MUSIC DEPT.

Glee Club Assists in Conservatory's Program at Jacob's Hall.

The pupils of Louise Jansen Wylie and Corine Paulson assisted by the University Girls' Glee Club gave a joint recital at Jacob's Hall last Wednesday Evening, January 10. The event was a happy beginning for the Conservatory's New Year, and was exceptionally well attended.

The program, as a whole, was a nicely balanced proportion of extremely classic and more modern numbers. Mrs. Harland Mossman sang "Caro Mio Ben," a favorite of Gulli Curci, and Grieg's "Bent Song" of Lili Lehmann fame.

Mrs. Walter Yale rendered the exquisite aria "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice." This gem is from "Samson et Delilah" which is considered by many as the most wonderful love music ever written.

Miss Marie Pellegrin sang Hardelot's "Sans Toi" with a true accent which makes her the envy of struggling French students.

Mina Harsch and Aileen Chiles did especially commendable work. In both cases real technical comprehension was combined with lovely voices.

The two piano numbers by Mary Alice Kirtley and Rose Segal revealed exceptional technique and interpretation. Miss Paulson's pupils seem to be quite consistent in quality.

The Glee Club exhibited ensemble singing under Dr. Kreuger's competent leadership. The school, by the way, is deeply indebted to Dr. Kreuger as foster-father of musical education in the University.

HELEN VANCURA ELECTED TO PRESIDENCY OF STUDENT COUNCIL AT MEETING JAN. 11

Election and installation of officers took place at a meeting of the Student Council at 12:30 Thursday, January 11, in room 5.

Helen Vancura served as chairman in the absence of Dr. James.

The following officers were elected: Helen Vancura, president; Lucile Bliss, vice president; Ruth Arlander, secretary. All members were present with the exception of James Doty.

Ruth Arlander at first declined the office of secretary on the ground of having too much other work to attend to. She later accepted, however, on the condition that she be allowed to resign at any time after the beginning of the following semester.

Another meeting was voted to take place the Tuesday following to arrange for the selection of a new editor for the Weekly Gateway. Editor Popplino stressed the necessity for immediate action in order that the new official might have time to learn a few of the necessary points regarding the new work.

The members of the council expressed satisfaction at the result of the election and pledged to assist and support their officers in carrying out the work that lies before them.

The Student Council, as stated by Dr. James, is a medium between the faculty and the student body. It is an organization through which the faculty may bring certain matters before the student body, and vice versa.

The Council has charge of elections of all kinds, regulates to a certain degree the conduct of the student body, attends to such other matters as are directly in the province of neither the faculty nor the various classes and organizations.

HOUSEHOLD ARTS DEPT. GIVES S. C. LUNCHEON

Dr. James Presides. Members Discuss Work Before the Organization.

The first meeting of the Student Council was held Tuesday, January 9, at 12:30 in the Household Arts department. An excellent luncheon was served by the culinary experts of the school.

A general discussion took place concerning the work before the council, and a few improvements and modifications were suggested which might further co-operation between students and faculty.

It was decided to hold another meeting later in the week.

PLEDGES ENTERTAIN.

Sig Chi "Regulars" Enjoy Treat at University Restaurants.

The Sigma Chi Omicron pledges formally entertained the actives at the University Restaurants. The enterprising misses have just opened these new Tea Rooms in the basement of Joselyn Hall. True Greenwich Village atmosphere prevailed. The guests were seated in antique chairs, and sipped coffee from cups of a model rarely seen even in the best homes.

The saying, "Too many cooks spoil the broth," did not seem to prevail at this opening luncheon, for despite a bewildering array of chefs, the cuisine was excellent. Cooks Mullaly and Wallace provided two minute cakes—that is, they lasted only two minutes.

A delightful spirit of democracy was noteworthy; guests openly enjoying conversation with the chefs.

Because of the frightful overhead expense, the Tea Room will be open only once a week, and then only to a small clientele.

JUNIOR MEETING.

All Juniors must attend the meeting that is to be held this Wednesday—Jan. 17—in room 2. Please come at 12:30 sharp so we shall have enough time to cover all the business. Make it a point to be there on Wednesday. There must be a 100 per cent attendance. Do your part!

PRELIMINARIES TO TWO GAMES REAL THRILLERS

Seconds Win Over Thirds 80-6, But Lose to Paxton Billiards 20-10.

The preliminaries for both games proved to be of the stuff that makes the fans howl with ecstasy. The second team, otherwise known as the scrubs, played the third team in a fast and furious game Thursday night.

The crippled seconds consisting of Coach Pressley and three men, Poucher, Petrie, and Bradshaw, trampled over the thirds to the long end of an 80-6 score. Featuring in the game were: Everson and Poucher who seemed unable to hit the ball, and the traveling 'a la football' of Jim Doty. Fast passing to pressley of the mean shooting eye, resulted in the downfall of the unlucky thirds.

Friday night, the seconds met the Paxton Billiards in a hard fought battle which ended 20-10 with the U. of O. seconds at the short end. The game was fast and scrappy, the Paxton Billiard team proving to be none other than most of Creighton's freshman team, including Hickey of Trinity, who fans will remember was in the main event last season when Trinity met defeat at the hands of the Maroons here. The scrubs showed up fine and every point gained by their opponents was certainly earned.

Thelma Pullin left the University of Omaha last week for an indefinite stay in California. (Chief Mourner, Glen Hesler.)

"Every day in every way I am getting dumber and dumber," said M. J.

Dr. Vartanian, "You have to sweat sometime, so better now than when taking your exams!"

MAROONS BEAT TARKIO TWICE

First Game 20-16—Second Game 27-18—Subs Get Try at Missourians.

Both games in the double session with Tarkio College, Tarkio, Mo., were packed away in the victory box by the Maroons in the last few minutes of play last Thursday and Friday nights.

Thursday night, the boys started out with snap, but the game became very ragged, both sides fighting for the ball with no particular instances of good floorwork. The half ended 7-6 with the U. of O. on the tail end. Time after time the speedy Ackerman and the Konecky brothers would work thru the Purple and White defense only to have the elusive sphere depart from their possession. In the second half with the score 16-14 against them and five minutes to go, the Maroons played the visitors off their feet, dropping three field goals in a row, finishing the last half with the big end of a 20-16 tally. Chesneau and Ackerman tied for point honors with three field goals each and the Konecky brothers with two each. Kastman and Capt. Davis both did good work, Kastman working well at center.

The second game started out with Capt. Kyle dropping the ball through for the initial score. The game proceeded at a little faster pace after the first ten minutes and both teams alternated in the lead, Tarkio overcoming a lead of 7-2 in the first part. With an 8-7 score against them, the Maroons settled down and began to show evidences of playing, when the half ended 13-8 with Omaha on top. Tarkio came back in the second half and with 8 1-2 minutes to go and 2 points ahead, began to stall. Two free throws by Leo Konecky tied the score and then the Maroons broke loose in a sweeping, slashing attack that resembled last years games. Ackerman, assisted by remarkable teamwork, sank four baskets. In the last few minutes, Paul Konecky dropped three pretty field goals from the middle zone. Chesneau and Leo Konecky added 4 and 0 points respectively. Ackerman put the finishing touch on the complete defeat of the Missourians by slipping in a final basket. Kastman

TODAY?—OR TOMORROW?

There was once a young man who was much addicted to carefree pleasures, loved to hobnob with the gentry, and scoff at the serious attitude of his brothers toward the great adventure called Life. He was happy. The future worried him not. "Joy was unconfined." But late in life existence pulled, and his end was miserable.

At the same time lived a sober youth who devoted himself more to labor than to play, more to the future than to the present. There was something of restraint and control in his manner, a dreamy glow to his eye. He was often unhappy. There were times when he was hard put to adhere to the course he had laid out for himself. But in later life, the way became easy. Habit made duty pleasure. Success came, and with it happiness and contentment; and his end was one of peace, and that satisfaction of work well done.

Should we consider tomorrow, or live only in today?

TO CRAM OR NOT CRAM.

The question often arises,—does it pay to cram; and, if so, is it proper from an ethical standpoint?

Every student is privileged to do it. No one can prevent him. Most instructors expect it.

There is no doubt that judiciously disposing one's study over the school year is productive of best results. But it is not every student who can bring himself to do this. Hence the necessity for cramming. It is often held that what one absorbs at examination time is not lasting. That is true, but only to a certain degree; for, if the student has obtained anything at all from the regular course, the "cram" at examination time will be a thorough and intensive review, and will act as a means of unifying the work—getting a view of it as a whole.

Furthermore, without this summing up of the various subjects, a large number of students would receive their credit without having anything but a most hazy notion of what the work is all about.

Success or failure does not depend solely upon the examination grade. Hence, it need not be so seriously considered.

If, then, it is profitable to review thoroughly just before an examination, and, since nearly every student takes advantage of this opportunity, no injustice is done anyone, the question of right or wrong is plainly answered.

Now that the warm days are with us, the campus and fleet of motor vehicles claim the attention of many of our less serious schoolmates.

We are glad to see our new Athletic Manager taking hold of the job with so vigorous a hand. Athletics have had a real "shot in the arm" in the last few weeks, and we want to see permanent effects from the "bracer."

At last the student council is at work. Judging from the pleasure derived from the first meeting, this organization is destined to be a popular one, and a position therein will be eagerly sought by all and sundry.

MURAL ARTISTRY.

Art is a wonderful thing. It forms a large part of all that which constitutes the ultimate end and aim of our existence—happiness for us and our successors. Yet all good things can be put to unworthy purposes.

There are in our school a few individuals who, apparently, aspire to produce specimens which appeal to the aesthetic sense of their schoolmates. But ambition has ruined many a good man. To those to whom these statements may apply we suggest that they refrain from exhibiting their works upon the walls of our classrooms and our cloak rooms.

Others, poetically inclined, display their unlofty verse in sundry places in our institution.

Art belongs on paper or canvas, or in marble or bronze; not on calcimine and plaster. Literature belongs in books, not on the wall.

The Goat Getter
BY NANCY AND WILLIAM

Ferne Thompson was stopped in a wild rush from the library the other day, and questioned as to the cause of her extraordinary celerity. The breathless reply was, "I must buy a package of paper immediately," and as she fairly flew down the steps she added, "They say that there's a new man in the book store—positively handsome!"

LICKED

"He's the cream of the pugilistic profession."

"He will be whipped cream before he knows it."

A Bachelor's Complaint.
I'd like to be a farmer
And live among the trees,
I'd sit beneath a peach tree
With peaches on my knees.

In Constant Touch.

"Since you have become rich I suppose you are out of touch with your old friends?"

"Not at all. Some of 'em touch me every day."

Truthful Farmer.

"Are these eggs fresh?"

"Yes, ma'am. They wouldn't have been laid till tomorrow if I hadn't made a mistake and torn an extra leaf off the calendar."

Nature's Mean Trick.

Nature plays a scurvy trick on a man when she furnishes him with a terrapin and champagne appetite and a ten and toast stomach.

MYSTERIES

THE RIDDLE OF THE CYCLOPS

ECLIPSING the other mysteries of the World war and overshadowing all other unsolved riddles of the sea—with the possible exception of the matter of the Marie Celeste—the unexplained loss of one of the United States colliers, Cyclops, stands pre-eminent, apparently one of the few cases on record where the sea literally opened and swallowed a huge boat, leaving not the slightest trace of the vessel or her crew.

The brief and formal announcement of the Navy department by Secretary Daniels issued at the time that the Cyclops was officially added to the list of missing ships, gives the principal details in the case, few and inadequate as they are: "It was on March 4, 1918," read this announcement, "that the collier Cyclops, 10,000 tons displacement, put into the British West Indies for coal. She was due in her home port on March 13. Since her departure from that port there has not been a trace of the vessel, and long-continued and vigilant search of the entire region proved utterly futile, not a vestige of the wreckage having been discovered.

"No reasonable explanation of her strange disappearance can be given. It is known that one of her two engines was damaged, and that she was proceeding at reduced speed, but if the engine had become disabled it would not have had any effect upon her ability to communicate by radio. Many theories have been advanced, but none that seems to account satisfactorily for the ship's complete vanishment. After months of search and waiting, the Cyclops has been finally given up as lost and her name stricken from the registry."

But these are only the barest facts in the case, and make no mention of one of the most interesting points connected with the mystery—the fact that the Cyclops carried as a passenger Alfred Louis Moreau Gottschalk, American consul general at Rio Janeiro and a man who had been instrumental in stirring up sentiment throughout Brazil in favor of the allied forces. A number of anonymous communications threatening his life had been received by the consul general prior to his return to the United States, in order to resume his commission in the Fifth regiment of New York, but the most startling fact of all was that within two weeks after the Cyclops sailed and at least a month before she was reported as missing a notice appeared in a Rio Janeiro newspaper stating that a regulement mass would be celebrated for the American consul general "lost at sea in the American collier Cyclops."

A number of Americans in Brazil noticed the announcement at the time and made inquiries about it, but the newspaper in question disclaimed any knowledge of the person who had inserted the notice and little attention was paid to it until word was received from the States that the collier was long overdue. American secret service agents then tried to trace the clue of the newspaper clipping, but the trail was too cold. The man who had brought it into the office of the newspaper had disappeared as completely as had the Cyclops!

Among the theories advanced for the failure of the vessel, seaworthy in the extreme, and in the best shape save for a minor accident to one of her engines, was that she had either been sunk by a German submarine operating in West Indian waters or that she had been captured and taken into Germany in order that the central powers might have the benefit of the large cargo of manganese which she was carrying. One of the first acts of the American authorities after the signing of the armistice, therefore, was to examine all German records dealing with naval operations during the period of the war. But, while reference was found to the sinking of every vessel which had been torpedoed, together with the date of the attack and the name of the officer commanding the submarine or raider, no mention whatever was to be located concerning the Cyclops. If she fell a victim to a German submarine, it must have been one of those which failed to return to port, else German pride in the success of their campaign of frightfulness would have led to a permanent record of the exploit.

Inasmuch as no storm or even rough weather was reported in the West Indies at this time, the most tenable theory appears to be that of certain naval officers who maintain that the collier must have foundered through the sudden displacement of her cargo—manganese shifting with the ease and rapidity of a cargo of wheat. But, until the truth or falsity of this supposition is established by the discovery of some totally unexpected clue, the Cyclops must be numbered with the President, the Naronic, the City of Boston and the other vessels which have made the "port of missing ships." It is significant, however, that the Cyclops was the only vessel equipped with wireless that has ever disappeared without a trace or a whisper of trouble.

Bridegroom in Obscurity.

"Where is the groom?"

"There he is."

"Can't see him."

"Well, you can see the tip of his nose. He's behind the bride's bouquet."

Just Dog.

He was a sad-looking, much-neglected member of his tribe—just an ugly street cur following at the heels of a very young and ragged master, just now laden down with a bundle of wood, quite as big as himself. The dog loitered after the manner of the beast, whereupon the boy looked over his shoulder and shouted to him, "Come on, Beauty!"

Personals

Warning to all cat lovers—Keep your eyes on your cats. The physiology class has organized a cat hunt, under the direction of Miss Winters. The first feline to die for the cause has been a beautiful fluffy mause. It is reported, however, that pedigreed angoras are being especially sought.

Harry A. Stemme, who has been forced to remain in Omaha on account of his ill health, is taking some work here in preparation for his M. A. degree. Mr. Stemme received his B. A. at Wheaton College, Ills. and has also taken two years of work at the New York Biblical Seminary. While in New York he was engaged in social service work.

Eldon Langevin, manager of Omaha's "Little Theatre," put on an entertainment at Albion, Nebraska, New Year's night. Mr. Langevin is now coaching a play at the Kountz Memorial Church.

If you have a bad cold, come to Bible Class. Helen Searson is very generous.

Miss Winters is very popular. She had two invitations to go riding last Wednesday. Did she go?

We were glad to see the following old (not ancient) students at our school last week: Madge Killian, Leona Johnston, Leslie Van Nostrand, Leonard Thiessen, and Mary Mann.

Why did Mrs. Johnston put the poor little dog outside? He wanted an education.

CO-ED'S EMBARRASSMENT RESULT OF FRANKNESS

Tells Dr. Krueger She Doesn't Like Lectures—Plans to Study During Hour.

Magdalena Leinweber believes frankness should stamp all her utterances—that is, she did until Wednesday morning. As she was blissfully unaware of the fact that her French class was dismissed Wednesday morning in order that the students might attend Dr. Krueger's lecture, she hastened to the political science professor to secure some material she had promised to type for him.

"I hear that there is to be a lecture at the auditorium this morning; but I'm not going," announced Magdalena. "Oh, is there?" he asked in a surprised tone, "Guess I'll go then."

"Humph," she replied disdainfully. "If I were a professor, I wouldn't go to any old lectures." Then considering the subject for a moment, she said thoughtfully, "Perhaps I'd better go though. I'll sit in the back row and study, for I don't want to waste my time."

They entered the auditorium, and Magdalena seated herself near the front of the room, opened her book, and began to study. At that moment, the speaker's name was announced; Magdalena, her face flaming with mortification, closed her book, and for the rest of the hour, under the mirthful gaze of Dr. Krueger, took voluminous notes.

Betty Says:

Betty Taylor's husband, Jim Doty, is quite attentive of late. He even took her to the Sun last week—on Ann McConnell's tickets.

Students at assembly gazed in admiration the other day when Dean James, displaying hitherto undreamed of lyrical powers, announced:

"We will try to sing a song we know."

"Praise God from Whom all blessings flow!"

Glen Hesler (on extemporaneous speaking, in rhetoric): "I don't know when you should use a summary, but I know it's the safest way to end your speech."

Eloise Magaret announces for the benefit of those professors who have difficulty in pronouncing her name that she refuses to respond in the future to (1) "Miss Maa-gaar-ette," (2) "Miss Marjerette," or (3) "Miss Marjorie."

Suggested by an habitual passenger on the 24th Street car line: A course in hygiene for all conductors, emphasizing the benefits of fresh air.

Constance Perley has a new pair of brilliant red ear rings. She borrowed every available pair within a radius of three miles of the University until Mrs. Walters kindly took compassion on her and presented her with the aforementioned pair.

"There were some beautiful black and white ones," graciously smiled Mrs. Walters, "but they cost fifty cents, so I bought the ten cent ones."

A REAL DILEMMA.

Herbert William Fischer, embryo attorney and magician of note, rolled luxuriously upon the campus the other day in his maroon colored, seven passenger, eight cylinder, Jordan car. Parking his car, he entered the doors of his Alma Mater to attend a lecture on the "Philosophy of Religion." Now Mr. Fischer, we are told, has a great line with the ladies. Whether his charm be conscious or unconscious it is irresistible, as the remainder of this narrative will prove. Upon returning from his lecture, he found his handsome car filled to overflowing with beautiful co-eds. In spite of his popularity with the ladies, the sight of the fair sex in such numbers quite overcame him. Considering the situation judiciously with his legal mind, he noted that in all that galaxy of girls there was left not one small space in which he might rest his ample self. As to the final settlement of the difficulty, ask Herb himself.

Gabby

Some frat pins change hands almost as rapidly as certain governments of today change rulers. One dainty little kindergarten instructress-to-be unblushingly confesses that the Phi Sig pin she is wearing at the present is the second one within two weeks.

An eminent authority has argued that opposites attract each other. After studying the latest activities of our little friend of intrigue and love, we are inclined to give credence to this contention. The girl is the petite, dark-haired maiden so frequently spoken of as "that charming, little Miss ——" Gracious, we almost told her name. He is tall, and also dark. His first name, with the exception of one letter, bears a marked resemblance to that young gentleman mentioned earlier in this article. But anyway, they are reported to have taken a long walk together the other morning, but where they went, and what they did and said, still remains an unfathomable mystery.

The Texas hero has his own ring back again. No deep or tragic event accompanied this solemn rite, for it was done in a very business-like manner during school hours in the hall.

Gabby has attended all of the basket ball games with eyes cocked and brain well primed, looking for—many charming couples from the University but—

A boy and a girl may make a pair, But both, alas! come solitaire.

Please at least bring a girl once in a while, boys, or we will accuse you of selfishness.

NOT INTERESTED

The profiteer was buying books. "Here's one you should have, sir," said the assistant. "Boswell's 'Life of Johnson.'"

The profiteer drew himself up. "I am not interested in the careers of colored pugilists," he said, and continued to turn the pages and look at the illustrations of the various books on the shelves.

Inefficient Office Boys.

"Where's your office boy, Dave?" "Fired him Saturday—never did anything but stand around, looking wise."

"Well, he won't be in your way any more, I reckon, now you're rid of him."

"Don't be so sure about that. He may turn up here some day as an efficiency expert."—Everybody's Magazine.

Explained.

"What is your regular business?" asked the judge of the man who had just been convicted of selling a gold brick to an unsuspecting citizen of New York city, which is the only place they can be sold nowadays.

"Your honor," answered the man, "being honest is my regular trade and I was on my vacation."—Farm Life.

If we were as pleasant all the time as we are when we want to be; this would be a much happier world.

ALUMNI

On December 10th., Esther Janssen, '21, entertained several University girls at a luncheon at her home. Many were the speculations regarding its nature, all of which were set at rest when cards read in turn, gave forth the announcement of her engagement to Bruce Lynch of this city.

The Alumnae of the Kappa Psi Delta sorority was entertained at the annual Christmas party at the home of Mary Killian on Friday, December 20th. Jessie Tennant also entertained for them on December 17th. The home of Katherine Reynolds was the scene of their gathering again on Wednesday, January 3rd., when Bridge and Mah Jong furnished the fun.

Mable Rasmussen, '20, who is teaching "Veni, vidi, vici," at Malvern, Ia., Mary Killian, '20, who presides over the chair of Etiquette at St. Paul, Minn., and Marie Cejnar, '20, who instructs in the phrases of psychology at Neola, Ia., were visitors during the holiday season. Mable Norris Coon and Peg Powell, also of this class, were conspicuous by their absence. Mable is chief-cook and bottle washer in Red Cloud, Nebr., and Peg is far away in Colorado. Greetings from California were received here by friends of Elizabeth Hunter, formerly of this same class.

There were two new arrivals lately in the ranks of Alumni and former students. George Parish, '13, wears a broad grin for a baby daughter, born in December, and Mildred Street Boyer has a son, born on December 28th.

PI OMEGA PI.

The University of Omaha, in its brief but successful career, has watched the growth of several sororities and fraternities. And now once more our school has been called upon to take 'neath her sheltering wings another brood. This brood, an out growth of the Delta Kappa Club, has been rechristened Pi Omega Pi with her heartfelt blessings.

YOU need not discard that comfortable pair of shoes just because they're a bit worn. We'll make them look like new, but they still have that "comfy feeling."

OUR FACULTY:

Varied experiences taking him over much of the eastern part of the United States is the lot of one of the University's new mathematics teachers. He is a graduate of Trinity College, Durham, North Carolina, and is planning to study at Columbia University, New York City, this summer.

At present, he is teaching mechanical drawing, physics, shop practice, and analytical geometry. Teaching such a variety of subjects implies a great deal of versatility. Electrical work, he explains, proves to be most interesting and fascinating.

Previous to his teaching at this University, he was employed at the Central Electric Company, St. Louis, the Carolina Light and Power Co., the New York Edison Co., New York City, and the Kansas City Power and Light Co., Kansas City, Mo.

During the war he was stationed first at Plattsburg, and later at Durham, North Carolina, where he was also instructor in civil engineering at Trinity College.

MISS WINTERS TALKS AT GIRLS' Y. ASSEMBLY

Faculty Member Discusses "Student Friendships" at Meeting January 9.

"Student Friendships" was the subject Miss Winters, instructor in physiology, chose for a talk at girls' assembly, January 9.

"In college some sort of acquaintance is forced upon every student," she gave as one of the commendatory features of college life. "Even those who do not want to mix find themselves drawn into unconscious friendships."

Miss Winters mentioned the forming of friendships, how they arise within the social unit of a class or a club, or just between two persons. She discussed the meaning of the word "friend," quoting a small boy's definition.

"A friend is one who knows all about you and loves you just the same."

"So," she said, "we do not necessarily have to admire everything our friends do, but we love them just the same. Friends don't have to be the people we're with the most. They're the ones we know we can go to for help."

Miss Winters told of a meeting in which three great men had each given their meaning of friendship. "A friend," said the first, "is one who will help you." "Friendship," corrected the second, "is to give." The third of them combined the two thoughts as he said, "Friendship is giving and receiving."

UNI UMOR

BANNED

"When I was engaged to her I used to call her 'Cutie.'"

"When I was engaged to her I called her 'Hon,' now no girl'll let you call her either 'Cootie' or 'Hun.'"

How About It?

When knighthood was in flower
Each dame got a seat.
She didn't have to glower
Or tire her dainty feet.

Strategy.

"You always take your husband along when you go to buy a new gown?"

"Certainly. In the presence of half a dozen beautiful models and a modiste who speaks perfect French he hasn't the nerve to talk about economy."

Free Rides.

Blackstone—Jenks and his wife enjoy a motor trip every Sunday morning.

Webster—Why, I never knew they owned a car.

Blackstone—They don't. But Jenks has been corresponding with real estate agents lately.

Might as Well.

Sporter—Yes, I'm very fond of hunting.

Speffer—It's a pleasure to meet a great sportsman.

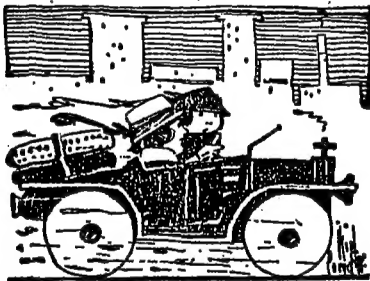

Sporter—But, you see, I'm a member of the society for the protection of animals. So to satisfy that sporting spirit I use blank cartridges.

Hubby's Idea.

Hub—How about your new dress? I thought you meant to wear it tonight.

Wife—Yes, but it wasn't ready. The dressmaker is putting the finishing touch to it.

Hub—Oh, I thought I was the one to get the finishing touch.

TO BEGIN ON

"So your husband refused to buy you an automobile?"

"Not exactly refused; he said I ought first to become familiar with machinery in general, so he bought me a sewing machine."

Girl to a Tightwad Sweetie.

"They say that time is money, but now listen, bo," said Mary Blue; "To spend your time with me's alright, But spend a little money, too."

Different.

"There," said Jones, "there is a woman in a million."

"So?" queried Smith. "Feminist? Politics?"

"Nothing like it, but she will tell you or anyone that she has more clothes than she needs and that she is satisfied with her husband."

Tremendous Force of Habit.

Restaurateur—Want a new counter-man? Where's the fellow I hired yesterday?

Manager—Too absent-minded, sir. He's an ex-barber and he would scrape the whipped cream off the pies.

Banting and Banter.

"Since her marriage Carrie is losing pounds and pounds. Is she dieting?"

"No, she explains that her husband belittles her."—Life.

Confirmed.

"What? You! The woman hater married! How you have changed!"

"On the contrary, I am now a great woman hater than ever before!"

PROFESSOR ADDRESSES STUDENTS ON CODE LAW

Says Bill is Method Designed to Simplify Governmental Procedure.

Repeated and frenzied requests for his notes on the Nebraska Code Bill are responsible for Dr. Krueger's lecture on the code to all rhetoric students studying the subject of extemporaneous speeches, at the auditorium Wednesday morning.

"Elimination of unnecessary boards, consolidation into major departments, fixing responsibility in the department, making them dependent on the governor, and centralizing responsibility in the governor,—that, in brief," explained Dr. Krueger, "is the meaning of the code."

He emphasized the fact that the code bill is not a complicated system, but that it is really very simple. In the federal administration, he pointed out, responsibility is fixed, while in the state administration it is not.

"A mass of administrative and board members are appointed by the governor with the consent of the senate, or by the legislature alone," he said in describing the chaotic condition of the state governments of today. "Whenever the necessity arose, a board was created. These boards work as if they were a separate administrative unit interested not in the welfare of the state but in their own affairs, and lobby in the legislature to secure money."

About 30 years ago, he said, a movement for the reorganization of state governments began, and finally, in 1919, the Nebraska Civil Administrative Code Bill was passed by the state legislature.

How the state had benefited from the code, how the duplication of departments and offices had been eliminated, and how state money had thus been saved were then shown by Dr. Krueger.

"Although I am in favor of the code system," he declared, "I agree with the opponents of the code that under the present system, it is possible to build up a party machine. But this fault may be remedied by establishing the merit system in the civil service. Thus it would not be possible for the governor to appoint anyone he desired."

Dave Chesneau certainly has a fructious eye for the basket when points are needed.

Thanks to "Bob" Sackett, our loyal alumnus, we have some real score boards. They certainly worked fine and are appreciated greatly.

WHO'S WHO ON THE TEAM

To have his back nearly broken on a radiator, seems to be Leo Konecky's idea of getting up more steam. Did you see how he just naturally took the ball thru the whole Tarkio team for two points Thursday night all by himself after trying to dislocate a radiator?

The way "Ack" took the ball away from his opponent Friday was remarkable. Tarkio men thought a young catamount had landed on their necks, so just naturally dropped the ball and ducked for cover.

Wade Reeves made Tarkio take long shots like Yankton. The back court is not a place to try for a close shot with Wade within hailing distance.
